GERMANS LOSE 10,000 DEAD ON RUSSIAN FRONT

Red Army Drives Ahead in Increasingly Violent Battles; Nazis Rush Reserves.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, May 7—The Red army, smashing forward in increasingly violent battles which have cost the Germans nearly 10,000 dead, has driven a wedge between the German and Rumanian forces operating north and south of the Kuban river in the Caucasus and is tightening its net about Novorossisk, front line dispatches reported today.

Aided by strong air forces, the Soviet troops cut one road after another in the Kuban valley, severing axis supply lines and avenues of escape.

One dispatch said the Russians cut an important road and captured a height dominating the approaches to a large city, the name of which was not given.

Pour in More Reserves

Red Star, the army newspaper, said the Germans were pouring in more reserves, along with more tanks and planes.

Immediately northeast of Novorossisk the terrain is extremely difficult, full of terraces and steep hills. The Germans, and their Rumanian satellites, are dug in deeply here, and are fighting fiercely, it was said.

German prisoners told their captors the German officers had orders to shoot every man who fell back.

A dispatch from Izvestia, the government newspaper, said special groups had been organized to bury the axis dead and that one of these groups buried about 2,000 soldiers yesterday.

West of captured Krymskaya the Red army managed to drive one part of a large axis force to one side of the swamp and river and pursued another force down the opposite side of the river.

(The midnight Soviet communique said five German counterattacks, each succeeding one more bitter, were fought off in the region of Neberdjayevskaya, which is only nine miles from Novorossisk. There were some reports that the Russians were only five miles from the Black sea port off which Red fleet warships stood ready to block an evacuation attempt.

Nazi Reports

(German broadcasts said the Russians were attempting to flank the north end of the battle zone with water-borne troops sent from Rostov across the sea of Azov, and claimed that German bombers destroyed 11 Soviet barges in that region, and that 18 boats carrying Russian troops were sunk in an attempt to cross the Kuban river at a point in the Taman peninsula.)

(The German radio carried an official statement that 155 Soviet planes were shot down Thursday on the Russian front.

(Another German radio broadcast said German coastal batteries sent Soviet warships scurrying back into Leningrad harbor when they tried to sneak out under the cover of a smoke screen.)

NAZIS STRENGTHEN DEFENSE OF NORWAY

Germans Said To Be Digging Huge Anti-Tank Ditch.

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, May 6—(Delayed)—The Germans are intensifying the work on Norwegian fortifications following a conference in Narvik at which possibilities of invasion were discussed by Norwegian leaders and heads of the German Army, Navy and police, reliable reports from inside Norway said today.

These reports said orders had been given by the Norwegian underground organization to prepare for open revolt and more snarls [illegible] participated in the total labor mobilization campaign.

In the province of Jaeren on the southernmost coast of Norway between Stavanger and Kristiansand, the Germans have begun [illegible] a giant anti-tank ditch, it was reported. Extension of the railroad line north of Mosjoen in northern Norway also is being pushed and work is being hurried on an airfield at Orlandet, off Trondheim fjord and a submarine station at Trondheim, it was said.

Other sections of the coast already have been fortified. Unconfirmed reports here said heavy units of the German fleet had moved from Trondheim to the area of Tromsoe, north of Narvik.

Marion Plant Workers Fly Flag In New Drive Against Absenteeism

Employment Trebled; Improvements Now Being Completed.

The American Flag, clearly-defined symbol of this nation's democratic way of life for 150 years, is being used by Old Fort Mills in a fight against absenteeism.

The privilege of raising the flag each day for a week is won by the department boasting the best employe attendance during the previous week. This program was developed recently through the cooperation of company officials and department foremen and put into effect at a patriotic flag demonstration at the company's plant last Saturday morning.

The accompanying picture shows the ceremony with Clyde White, to the left of the flag pole, and Clarence Rupright, to the left and rear of the pole, assisting in the raising. Mr. White is mill superintendent and Mr. Rupright is the plant's oldest employe in point of service. Pictured in the foreground are Walter E. Flumerfelt, vice president and manager of Old Fort Mills, and Mr. Flumerfelt's young son, Dick. More than half of the company's workers are pictured in the background with other Old Fort Mills executives.

Typical of small American industrial plants helping no little in the campaign for victory over the axis is the Old Fort Mills plant, whose products are not emptied directly into war channels but even so are contributing immensely in this total effort.

Plant Operation Expanded in Production Valuable in War.

Old Fort Mills is one of the few plants which didn't have to convert its production line immediately after Pearl Harbor. Its products are important in peacetime—even more so in wartime. As before Dec. 7, 1941, the company is engaged in the processing of soybeans and the manufacture of products from soybeans.

Important Products

Chief products are soybean oil and soybean feeds, a highly-nutritious product for farm

U. S. TO SEND MOSCOW ENVOY

Joseph E. Davies Will Carry Letter from President to Stalin.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 7—President Roosevelt said today Joseph E. Davies would leave at once for Moscow to carry a personal letter from the President to Joseph Stalin.

The Chief Executive fended off all attempts of reporters at a press conference to gain information on the contents or on whether Davies would bring back a reply. He said Davies, former ambassador to Russia, does not know himself what is in the letter.

There have been conjectures that the President might propose a meeting with the Russian leader similar to that he has held with Winston Churchill, British prime minister.

Mr. Roosevelt told the reporters, however, that their guesses always had been wrong in the past.

Davies will not be gone very long and will come right back, Mr. Roosevelt said. He said he assumed his personal envoy would learn the contents of the document in Moscow, discuss them, and then return.

To an inquiry as to whether Davis would bring a reply, the Chief Executive asserted that his questioner was assuming the letter called for a reply.

"Will it?" he was asked.

With a grin, he replied that nobody had seen the letter, except himself and his personal secretary, Miss Grace Tully.

"Did you write it in English?" a reporter wanted to know.

No, Irish, the President retorted.

Marion Civic Chorus Wins High Praise for Presentation of Haydn's Oratorio

Seven Hundred Persons Hear "The Creation" in First of Series of Programs To Be Given by Singers.

By EDNA S. DUTTON

The story of creation from the time when "darkness covered the earth" to the "achievement of the glorious work" was told in Haydn's "The Creation," by the Marion Civic Chorus and a group of three guest artists, Miss Helena Strassburger, soprano, of Cleveland, Giuseppe Gentile, baritone, also of Cleveland, and Harold Haugh, tenor, of the faculty at the Oberlin Conservatory of Music. An audience estimated at 700 attended.

The chorus of more than 100 voices, under the direction of L. G. Jones, presented the masterpiece with feeling and a splendid interpretation of the text, and the guest artists left nothing to be desired in their renditions of the arias, recitative passages and trios. Miss Maye Evangeline Lawrence presided at the organ and provided an effective musical setting for the oratorio with her organ prelude, "Toccata in D Minor," Bach, and "Diferencias," Babezon. The piano accompaniment, played by Miss Rosaline Manzo, added in no small way to the success of the presentation. The part of Gabriel was sung by Miss Strassburger, Uriel by Mr. Haugh and Raphael by Mr. Gentile.

Story Of Oratorio

"The Creation" begins with an orchestral description of chaos and following this the angel Raphael, in recitative, takes up the tremendous story "In the beginning." Softly the chorus sings "The Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters" and God said "Let there be light." The gloom vanishes and disorder begins to yield to order with the appearance of the first days. By God's hand Satan and his hosts are precipitated in the deep abyss and the composer's great descriptive powers are shown in the tenor aria "Now Vanish before the Holy Beams," the canonic chorus, "despairing, cursing rage," and the baritone aria "Rolling in foaming billows." The lovely soprano aria "With verdure clad" tells of the celestial freshness which adorns the world and the third day is proclaimed, the planets set to divide the day into night. The sons of God announce the fourth day in the great chorus, "the heavens are telling the glory of God," one of the sublimest of all choral pieces.

The second part of the oratorio contains the work of the fifth and sixth days. "On mighty pinions," a brilliant aria, sung by Gabriel, the eagle soars aloft and the merry lark welcomes the morn and the lovely trio reveals a moment of tranquility to allow the audience to observe the verdant, sloping hills. Then at God's command the earth teems with beasts as well as birds and fishes. The creation of man to give gratitude and praise to God is told in the tenor aria, "in native worth" one of the gems of the oratorio. The chorus proclaims in powerful harmony "Achieved is the glorious work."

The composition is the most popular of Haydn's work and Burkholder's wife, Estella, said she saw the bolt strike about 11 p. m. The tractor ran through fences before stopping, she added.

The Burkholder farm is near Beaverdam, about 10 miles northeast of here.

SHOP WORKERS IN BOND DRIVE

Give Valuable Support to County's Buy a Bomber Campaign.

Reports that Marion factory workers are preparing to do their part in the Marion county bomber campaign this month came to the drive headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce today as reports of yesterday's sales pushed the total purchases to date to the $81,062.50 mark. This is nearly 19 per cent of the $325,000 needed by the end of May to assure Marion county of having a four-motor bomber named "The Spirit of Marion County, Ohio."

Harold J. Grigsby, in charge of the payroll deduction bond purchase division of the bomber campaign, said reports from labor union organizations and factory heads indicate workers throughout the city and county are preparing to "buy an EXTRA BOND" for the bomber this month.

Speaker Coming

Frank Pauly of the national war savings staff is scheduled to come to Marion from Cleveland next week to speak at meetings of shop workers in the plants. Arrangements are being made through unions and factory managers.

Many factories are staging inter-department bond contests for the month, and various methods are being used to mark the progress of bond sales among workers.

One development today was certification of the Marion-Reserve Power Co. by the county war savings committee as having its payroll deduction purchases of bonds on a 10 per cent basis. Officials said the company's 315 employes have an average payroll deduction of 10.14 per cent and that a large percentage of them plan to buy extra bonds this month to help the bomber campaign.

Lodge Reports

The Marion Moose lodge today made a partial report to the drive headquarters, listing sales totaling $525. A. S. Daniels and William Markley, lodge committee members, said letters have been sent all members urging them to support the bomber drive.

Blackout Rules in Star Today

A chart summarizing the procedure to be followed in Marion county's test blackout next Wednesday night may be found on Page 2 of today's Star.

Because the rules in this chart are standard for all blackout tests in Ohio and will be followed if an actual air raid ever hits Ohio, civilian defense officials have suggested the chart be clipped from the paper and saved for reference.

ATTACKS BRING REQUESTS THAT DOGS BE TIED

Authorities Report 12 Persons Bitten in 2 Weeks; Health Board Action Expected.

A series of cases in which dogs have attacked young children in the last two weeks resulted today in requests from offices of the city health department, city police and the county dog warden urging Marion county dog owners to keep their animals tied during the coming summer months.

Four cases of children bitten by dogs yesterday were received by these officials and two others were received Monday. County Dog Warden Elmer Ullom said these latest cases bring to 12 the number of cases in the last two weeks.

He said drastic action would be taken by city and county agencies to stop recurrence of these attacks. As a precautionary measure he pleaded to owners of dogs in the county and especially in the city, to keep their dogs tied in the next several weeks.

Board May Act

There was a possibility that the city health board would pass a resolution making it illegal for owners to permit dogs to run at large. Similar action was taken by the board a year ago. It was learned today that Dr. Martin M. Weinbaum, city health commissioner, requested the board to pass a resolution of this type at the board's April meeting. No action was taken, however, because no reports of attacks by dogs had been received at that time.

This action is expected however, at the next meeting. A meeting originally was scheduled for yesterday but because of the absence of several members it was postponed to a later date.

Only one of the attacks has been serious officials pointed out. James Carnell, four-year-old son of Mr. and Msr. William C. Carnell of 285 Patten street, was bitten on the head above the left eye early Monday. The attending physician reported a tooth from the dog was left in the child's head and by the tooth authorities were able to locate the dog which attacked the child. The dog, a seven-year-old bulldog, was reported owned by Eugene Sens of 202 Ballentine avenue. It is being held 10 days for a rabies checkup. The boy was reported "much improved" today.

Warden Bitten

The dog bit Warden Ullom on both arms after it was captured.

Also reported to officials Monday wast an attack on four-year-old Vernon Strickler of 489 West Church street, who was bitten on the right ear and arm by a chow dog. At noon today officials investigating the case had not learned the name of the owner of the dog.

Owner of one of the dogs which figured in one of the four attacks yesterday, I. H. Stevens of 510 Park street, was arrested by Warden Ullom on a charge of harboring an unlicensed dog. Arraigned in municipal court today, Stevens pleaded guilty and was given a suspended fine of $15 and costs by Municipal Judge W. Dexter Hazen.

The Stevens dog, believed to be about 10 years old, was reported to have attacked Linn Heth, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard K. Heth of 254 Patten street. The attack took place about 6 p. m. yesterday near the Heth home.

A police dog owned by Ora Mae Brown of 1021 West Center street bit Theodore Aldrich, 10, yesterday at the rear of 206 Nye street, authorities were told. The victim lives at 184 St. Claire street.

Girl, 5, Attacked

Judith Clark, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Clark of 540 Silver street, was attacked at 11:20 a. m. yesterday in front of her home by a shepherd dog reported owned by Robert Gregory of near Marion. Witnesses said the dog leaped from an automobile and attacked the girl.

One of two bulldogs reported owned by Nell Smith of 126 East Walnut street attacked Carl Porter, 11, of 506 South Main street about 3 o'clock last night at the Snyder Gulf filling station on Delaware avenue. The boy's left hand, arm and shoulder were slightly injured. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Porter.

GIFTS FOR PRISONERS

WASHINGTON, May 7—United States prisoner and civilian internees held in Germany and Italy may be sent cigarets and tobacco every two months starting next Monday under a plan announced today by the war production board. Prisoners in Japan will be included in the plan whenever some way of getting packages through is available, the WPB added.

SPAATZ OPENS AIR OFFENSIVE

Greatest Ground Support Attack of War Under Way in Africa.

By The Associated Press

AT AN ADVANCED U. S. AIR BASE IN TUNISIA May 6—(Delayed)—Lieut. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, commanding general of the northwest African air force, launched the greatest ground support air attack of three years of African warfare at dawn today.

During the first four hours of the attack, the staggered axis forces were hit with a bomb tonnage nearly equalling that dropped on London during some of the big German night attacks.

This punch was delivered by light and medium bombers alone.

The thunderous air blow was coordinated with the largest infantry and tank attack launched by the allies so far in this war, exceeding even the scale of the mighty British attack at El Alamein. There was a continuous air and ground onslaught from the Mediterranean south to the Pont Du Fahs sector.

All last night bombers droned over the front line, pouring high explosives on the Germans. Then at dawn the drone increased to a steady roar as Boston and Mitchell medium bombers swung off the big air fields of this area in steady flights of 12.

A tremendous cloud of dust arose over the air fields as planes taking off met returning missions trying to land. Swearing mechanics and ground crews refitted and rebombed the planes hurriedly so they could take it off again.

It was "sweatshop" warfare, typical of a huge air and ground offensive in full swing.

Hundreds of allied fighters swept the skies clean of the enemy and maintained continuous air cover over the entire axis Tunisian bridgehead in giant swarms.

MARION SEAMAN REPORTED MISSING

Relatives of Paul G. Hough Get War Dept. Message.

Paul G. Hough, fireman second class, has been reported missing in action, somewhere in the Pacific area, according to word received by relatives Thursday from the war department.

He is the son of Mrs. Orpha Hough of near Essex and Bert Hough of Caledonia. Fireman Hough lived at 191 Neal avenue and prior to his induction into the Navy last fall was employed with Scioto Ordnance Plant. He received his basic training at Great Lakes Naval Training Station, Ill., and before he was assigned to San Francisco and later active sea duty he spent a nine-day leave with relatives.

New Safety Director at Ordnance Plant

A change in safety directors at the Scioto Ordnance Plant was announced today with Nelson C. Longee taking over duties formerly held by John Raytkwich, who has left to take a similar post in the Pennsylvania Ordnance Works.

Mr. Longee formerly was safety director for the Caribbean division of the Caribbean Defense Command, involving safety activities among construction workers at military bases. He also was safety engineer for the Jamaica Engineer District. He also has had experience in highway and civil engineering work. He recently completed courses in explosive safety engineering and explosive safety training.

He and Mrs. Longee and their three children are making their home in Marion.

10 KILLED IN BRITAIN

LONDON, May 7—Two or three German planes swept in from the English channel just after dawn today to bomb a town on the East Anglian coast. One bomb demolished a shop and another fell in a residential district. About 10 persons were reported killed.

1,000 CAPTIVE NAZIS TAKEN BY U. S. TROOPS

Ferryville Falls to Yanks; 25 Axis Ships Sunk in Sicily Straits.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, May 7—Allied troops have penetrated into the outskirts of Bizerte and Tunis, it was officially announced at Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters today.

Americans captured Ferryville, supply and repair depot on Lake Bizerte eight miles south of the naval base, at 1 p. m. (9 a. m. E. W. T.) today, said a dispatch from the field.

Reconnaissance units of the Second U. S. Army corps stabbed into the suburbs of Bizerte, Tunisia's main port and naval base.

British First army detachments made the plunge at Tunis, the capital.

Allied air forces unloaded ton after ton of explosives on roads choked by the retreating enemy. Among those in the rout were some of Hitler's proudest German troops.

Heavy fighting was reported in progress in both sectors as the U. S. second corps and the British First army capitalized on deep penetrations through collapsing enemy positions all along the northern Tunisian front.

"Our troops have continued their victorious advance," a special communique said.

Reconnaissance elements were said to have made the penetration of th Bizerte suburbs. Many more prisoners were taken, it was announced.

La Marde Captured

Armored units of the British First Army captured La Marde on the highway at the western edge of Tunis, the communique stated.

Allied planes, completely dominating the sky, maintained heavy attacks upon axis transport columns which clogged the roads of retreat.

(A broadcast by Grant Parr, NBC reporter attached to allied headquarters, said 25 enemy ships had been sunk in the Tunisian straits, this suggesting another powerful sweep against surface transports which might attempt to withdraw the axis survivors.

(The spirit of the German troops appears to have been broken, Parr said.

(Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, Nazi military commentator, said in a Berlin broadcast recorded by Reuters that French native troops had penetrated the inner fortifications of Bizerte. This went even beyond the allied account placing allied detachments in the outskirts.

(The NBC broadcast said American scouting parties made the penetration of the suburbs.)

Enemy Losses Heavy

Heavy losses were inflicted on the retreating force over wreckage-littered Terrain in some of the war's fiercest fighting. The offensive began at first light yesterday, raged through the day and as night fell both Americans and British were still advancing.

An allied communique said United States troops had captured four more important points in northern Tunisia in the push over Bizerte and captured more than 1,000 axis prisoners in the last two days.

As air forces blasted a path four miles long and 1,000 yards wide with a terrific bomb barrage which covered practically every square yard, the British Army swept down the main road to Tunis from Medjez-El-Bab, established itself on a broad strip extending five miles north and five miles south of the road and rolled eastward.

The infantry at first formed the spearhead of the drive, taking high ground and wiping out anti-tank gun positions. Then British armored formations, moving up on both flanks, took over the lead.

The Germans assigned 60 tanks to engage this steamroller movement, 35 to the south of Massicault and 25 north of the village. Both these formations were routed in armored battles during which several German tanks were destroyed. British anti-tank gun crews quickly took up strategic positions to prevent the enemy from throwing in any fresh armor. Massicault, 17 miles southwest of Tunis, fell into the heavy British pincer and by the time it was occupied at 3 p. m., British armored units which shot around the town were already advancing toward St. Cyprien, six miles up the road.

Many Axis Troops Killed

Many of the enemy were killed. To the American bag of more than 1,000 prisoners in the north, the First army added many hundreds. The captives included some German elite troops, who cracked as did the others under the terrific bombing, shelling,

FARM HARVEST HELP ASSURED

Davis Says Supply of Farm Labor Should Be Sufficient.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 7 — Food Administrator Chester C. Davis reported yesterday the farm labor supply should be sufficient to produce and harvest a 1943 crop up to the goals of the announced plan.

In a report to Economic Stabilizer Director James F. Byrnes, Davis said that if the potential labor supply is fully used farm production need not suffer this year from lack of help.

While he found the situation "not entirely satisfactory" and said that "some risk must be taken to produce the goals for certain crops," at least 100 per cent of requirements was figured for essential war crops and 75 per cent of normal needs for other crops, including corn and cotton.

Davis had been asked by Byrnes to give his immediate attention to the problem of supplying farmers with sufficient labor, machinery and supplies to carry out the government's record crop production program.

Source of Labor

The labor, he said, will come from 6,000,000 farm families, experienced workers deferred by selective service, return to farms of men in unessential industry, and soldiers over 38, mobilization of a crop corps of 3,500,000 persons from men, women and youths in town and cities, and importation of 50,000 laborers from Mexico, 10,000 from Jamaica, and more thousands from the Bahamas.

Except in a few areas of highly seasonal fruit and vegetable production, the food administrator said, it is believed most of the additional labor needed will be found locally through local efforts.

He reported that the war production board had agreed to an increase in farm machinery production from 23 to 40 per cent of the 1940 level and that repair parts production had been boosted to 160 per cent of the 1940-41 average. With few exceptions, Davis asserted, this will meet the needs for repair parts.

WPB, trying to locate the necessary steel, is following up, Davis said, the food administration's request for authorization of 9,530 additional combines, 4,460 corn pickers, and 2,000 pickup balers for delivery in time to help with the fall harvest.

The food administration has asked, for 1944, that WPB authorize 80 per cent of the 1940 production of farm implements and no limit on the making of repair parts, Davis said, and has been assured that the board concurs. The steel supply again is a limiting factor.

Nails, staples and hay bale ties are being produced in sufficient volume to meet urgent needs, the administrator reported, although the output of fence has been below requirements.

WPB, he said, is preparing an order which will help farmers obtain repair parts for other farm equipment, such as milking machines. Requirements for rope and binder twine apparently will be met, but the cotton and burlap bag supply is inadequate. However, Davis added, there should be ample production of cotton bale covers and enough bale tie strips for the anticipated cotton crop.

He said the petroleum administration has pledged a full supply of gasoline for food production even if it becomes necessary to reduce civilian supplies further.

The outlook is good, he reported, for putting 1944 farm equipment on rubber tires, although this is not assured.

"Adequate facilities," the administrator said, "are available to manufacture and to distribute all the insecticides and fungicides needed in food production." Summing up the report, Davis said it covered "the high spots of a situation that seems to be showing improved promise."

Civilian defense officials have suggested that readers of The Star save this outline of rules and refer to it during those broadcasts.

Plans for Marion County's Part In Nine-County Blackout Listed.

Final plans for the nine-county blackout May 12 were announced yesterday by William R. Martin, Marion county civilian defense coordinator.

The blackout signals which will originate in state headquarters in Columbus, will be given to the police department which will in turn relay them to the proper authorities for operation. Kenneth Fields is in charge of arrangements.

The key personnel in charge of signals at the control center on North State street will be summoned to their stations by telephone.

All lights must be extinguished and no pedestrians other than authorized civilian defense personnel will be permitted on the street. All pedestrians must seek cover immediately.

The next signal will be the steady blast of whistles, for two minutes. At this signal, buildings and street lights will remain blacked out but traffic lights will be turned on and traffic will resume with dimmed lights. Pedestrians may leave cover.

The all clear will be evident when the street lights come on and at that time normal activities may continue.

Rules for Traffic

On hearing the first steady blast of whistles, all vehicular traffic must dim their lights. Only emergency cars authorized by the chief of police may be on the streets after the choppy whistle blasts and these cars must be blacked out as follows: The right headlight must be completely blacked out and the left headlight must be on the lower beam only.

During the blackout, no pedestrians nor vehicular traffic will be allowed on streets, highway or county roads except authorized cars of the personnel of the civilian defense.

The nine counties to participate in the blackout are Marion Delaware, Franklin, Madison, Licking, Fairfield, Morrow, Pickaway and Hocking.

DIVORCES HELD UP

TOLEDO, May 7—County Clerk Gordon Jeffery said today more than 100 divorces on which no final decrees were issued are listed in his records. Final decrees were held up, probably unbeknown to the persons involved, because attorneys failed to pay the costs, he added.

COURT NEWS

$25,000 Suit Filed

A suit for $25,000 has been filed in common pleas court by Constance Crorey, a minor, by her father, Ralph A. Crorey, against Frederika Jenner and Matilda Bolinger, for injuries and illness which the plaintiff alleges she suffered as the result of a faulty gas stove.

In her petition the plaintiff claims that on Jan 7, 1942, fumes escaping from a gas stove at the Jenner home where she was rooming caused her to become unconscious for 27 hours and that after being revived by the fire department she was hospitalized with pneumonia and compelled to be under a doctor's care. Royal B. Binzer of Toledo and the firm of Mouser & Mouser represent the plaintiff.

MAYOR CANCELS TRIP

CLEVELAND, May 7 — Wage negotiations between the city transit system and the AFL street car and bus drivers' union forced Mayor Frank J. Lausche to postpone his trip to England, scheduled for May 12. Elmer Davis, head of the office of war information which arranged the trip, expressed hope the mayor would be able to leave soon.

Jacksonville, Fla., Bus Strike Is Settled

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 7 — Jacksonville returned to normal today after settlement of a strike which tied up 18 street car and bus operations in the metropolitan area with the exception of taxicabs.

Thousands of workers and war workers, who had trudged miles or turned pedestrian to get to work, were seeking ways to return home when an agreement was reached and the first buses appeared on the street late yesterday.

The tie-up resulted from a strike of 60 maintenance workers in a jurisdictional dispute between two American Federation of Labor unions.

CONSTIPATED? EASY DOES IT!

If you're constipated, reasons are it may be due simply to a lack of "bulk"-forming foods in the diet.

If that's your trouble, why resort to purges? They usually work by working on you—by jostling your intestines into action or drawing water into them from other parts of the body.

Give yourself gentle, yet effective, relief — by eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly. It's a delicious breakfast cereal that helps form a soft mass in the intestines, getting at the cause of constipation due to lack of "bulk" and correcting it. Eat ALL-BRAN regularly, drink plenty of water and "Join the Regulars"! Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

CLANCY'S been the gate-keeper here at the plant about as long as I can remember. Swell guy too—and usually very pleasant. That's why I took notice when he looked sort of glum.

"What's the matter, Clancy?" I says. "You don't look so perky today!"

"And for good reason," he says, "my breakfast was nothin' to shout about—in spite of the fact I made it myself. You see, the mornin's I check in the early shift I wouldn't be askin' Mary to be gettin' up at five o'clock. But I guess I'm not the cook I thought I was. I can't even make a good piece o' toast."

I sort of laughed and said, "Why sure you can. What you need is the right start. Just have Mary get you some Omar Bread and you can't miss making good toast. Omar is always good eating and it makes the swellest toast—crisp on the outside and fluffy and tasty inside. With good butter it's—"

That's as far as I got when Clancy yelled, "Be off with ye! And quit plaguin' a hungry man!"

I didn't get to tell him Omar toast makes the kind of breakfast that'll stick to your ribs. But if he took my advice, he's probably found that out for himself. I guess he did, too. See him smilin' today?

OHIO FLIER HELPS KEEP AXIS ON RUN

Lt. James H. Ullett of East Sparta Flies A-20 Boston.

By The Associated Press

AN ADVANCED AMERICAN BOMBER BASE IN TUNISIA, May 5—(Delayed)—Lt. James H. Ullett of East Sparta, O., is one of the American airmen receiving a large share of the credit heaped on crews of A-20 Boston bombers for helping ground troops press German and Italian foes back on their heels in Tunisia's "coffin corner."

The Bostons, dubbed "the flying artillery," have pasted axis forces with nearly 3,000,000 pounds of high explosives in hundreds of sorties with less than a one per cent loss to themselves, an accomplishment paralleling the record of the famous Flying Fortresses.

This most experienced light bombardment unit in the American air forces has been operating in such close support of United Nations ground forces it is virtually "glued" to them, moving its bases almost as often as the infantry.

The bomber crews are called out when ground forces encounter fixed fortifications they are unable to reduce with artillery and within an hour are smashing at the target, their missions coordinated with RAF Spitfire squadrons which escort the Bostons.

The most difficult target for air support to locate is a specific hill position, said Maj. Richard E. Horner, a squadron leader.

"From the air all hills look pretty much alike," Horner said.

The Boston pilots keep close tabs on battling ground troops.

"When things are tough on the ground and the Germans are moving up, it's tough in the air too," Horner asserted. "The Germans carry lots of punch when they're moving forward. But when they start retreating, we really get in our licks.

"The ground force makes it easy for us and we make it easy for them."

Giraud Sends New Unity Proposal to DeGaulle

By The Associated Press

LONDON, May 7 — The independent French news agency reported today Gen. Henri Giraud had proposed to Gen. Charles DeGaulle that they join forces by establishing a "provisional central power" in North Africa with themselves presiding.

The proposal, the news agency said, was contained in a letter dispatched by Giraud from Algiers on April 27.

The letter pointed out, it was added, that Giraud and DeGaulle would not form a "du-unvirate," since the responsibility would be shared by members of an executive committee and other officials of the "central power," which would consist at first of the present French overseas council and later of consultative bodies.

The agency quoted Giraud as saying that when France is liberated a government must then be set up on a legal basis emanating from pre-armistice legislation.

Brief Strike Threat Is Ended in Akron

By The Associated Press

AKRON, O., May 7—A three-hour work stoppage which threatened to halt Akron transportation company service ended with dismissal of seven employes, D. Lyle Mahan, business manager for the AFL International Machinists' Union, reported.

An assistant storekeeper and six other repair shop workers were discharged, he said, after a dozen AFL machinists walked out yesterday, claiming the company refused to dismiss a CIO union member and dues-delinquent employes.

A regional war labor board arbitrator had held the AFL had jurisdiction over repair shop workers under a union contract, he explained.

Frank Wirt, public relations director for the company, said the walkout tied up half the Rubber City's street cars and buses, which carry thousands of war workers to their jobs, and threatened to halt service entirely.

COMMAND CHANGED

14 PLANE VICTIMS KILLED INSTANTLY

Sergeant Tells of Death of General and Bishop.

By The Associated Press

REYKJAVIK, ICELAND, May 7—A veteran sergeant, only survivor of the plane crash in which Lt. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, Methodist Bishop Adna W. Leonard and 12 others were killed Monday, said last night he believed the victims died instantly after the plane struck a mountain in bad weather.

The lone survivor is Sgt. George A. Eisel, who bears three decorations for his air forces work in Europe and in Tunisia. His wife, Iva, lives in Columbus, O.

"The visibility was only about 40 feet and we had passed several peninsulas along the coast, but that last one was just too high," Eisel said. "It happened so suddenly, and nobody was expecting anything.

"I was the rear gunner. My turret was thrown right into the middle of the plane, or what was left of it. There I was for 36 hours before a rescue party found me. It took an hour to dig me out."

From the conversation Eisel said he heard on the intercommunications between the pilot and navigator, they found the airfield but decided to try another field because of the poor visibility. "But there it was impossible to land, so we went back to the first one," he said.

"I thought I would be burned inside the plane, but luckily rain started to fall and put out the fire," he said. "Then I started worrying I would not be found until dead, and I was terribly thirsty and hungry before the rescue party came."

He was carried a mile and a half on a stretcher to an ambulance.

His injuries were a cut foot and lacerations on his left hand.

Eisel said that Gen. Andrews was at the controls of the plane for some of the journey from England to Iceland but that before they attempted to land a captain had taken over.

LONDON, May 7—Appointment of Maj. Gen. Idwal Hubert Edwards, 48, as acting chief of staff in the European theater of operations was announced today by the U. S. Army.

He succeeds Brig. Gen. Charles H. Barth, 39, who was killed last Monday in a plane accident in Iceland that also took the lives of Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews and 12 others.

WAGE CORRECTIONS AUTHORIZED BY WLB

Regional Board Instructed To Make Adjustments.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, May 7 — The regional war labor board announced today it had been authorized by the national WLB to approve wage and salary increases to correct substandards of living and reported its first approvals under the new policy.

Lewis M. Gill, regional WLB chairman, declared the new order provided for increases which do not raise hourly rates above 30 cents and salaries above $50 a week, but added this did not mean all such increases would be approved.

"Approval of all or part of a proposed adjustment may be withheld by the regional board where the increase might seriously unstabilize wages in the particular industry or area," Gill said. "Approval is also conditional upon the employer's statement that he will not use the increase as the basis for seeking price relief or resisting justifiable reductions in price ceilings."

Five decisions announced today were the first approvals for voluntary salary increases based on substandards of living since President Roosevelt's "hold the line" order. One granted increases from $15 to $17.50 a week to 25 saleswomen of the S. S. Kresge Co. of Steubenville, O.

DANGER
CAR NOT IN USE TODAY
MUST IT MEAN 200 MILES WEAR ON YOUR MOTOR IN ONE MINUTE TOMORROW MORNING?*
Avoid this unnecessary "Start-Up" Damage . . . change to V.E.P. Alloyed-Oil
TODAY'S LONGER LAY-UPS give ordinary oil more time than ever to drain down from or dry off of cylinder and piston walls, leaving them without effective lubrication when you start up. While that oil is getting back on the job, real damage can be done.
*ACCORDING TO EXPERT OPINION, there can be as much wear on such a motor in the first minute as there would be in up to 200 miles of normal "warmed-up" driving. Wear you can't afford, today, with repair parts and mechanics so scarce . . . with transportation so vital.
V.E.P. LUBRICATION "STAYS PUT." This entirely new, entirely different oil has a "magnetic-like" action which makes it cling to cylinder walls and pistons for prolonged periods, even weeks. Effective lubrication is there, before you step on the starter.
TODAY'S DRIVING CONDITIONS are new, different. So is V.E.P. Alloyed-Oil. V.E.P. not only protects against "start-up" damage, but guards your motor against harmful sludge, carbon, varnish—all greater threats to your motor now that you're driving at lower speeds, taking shorter trips. You can get this added protection for the price of two newspapers per week. So why not switch to V.E.P. Alloyed-Oil today?

PENSIONS FOR JUDGES

Editor of The Star: The headlines in our papers today are concerned chiefly about the war and strikes, so that other articles of a great importance and carried under smaller typed headlines fail to attract the notice of Mr. John Q. Public, who should be greatly concerned because after all he pays the bills.

I am referring to the Reiners bill, which sets up a retirement system for judges with a maximum retirement pension of $3,600 a year and which has been recommended for passage by the house judiciary committee.

I would like for the author of this Reiners bill to explain to us just why a judge, who has served on the Court of Appeals, or a judge of the Common Pleas court, who, during their time of service have received a salary of from $7,200 to $12,000 dollars a year, should be entitled to receive a pension of that amount, while our senior citizens of this country and who have made America are existing on a paupers pension based on need.

I am not at all opposed to pensions, if they are allocated through the proper channels and to the proper people. But I wonder what stand the writer of the Reiners bill takes on the two per cent (2%) transaction tax bill, which has been in the ways and means committee at every session of congress for the last eight or ten years and won't be reported out for a just hearing and which if written into a law, would in my humble opinion do more toward allevating want and misery than anything so far proposed.

We the people have just gotten over laughing off the fact that congress tried hard to vote themselves pensions, but did not succeed, and now to have the State of "Beautiful Ohio" go into a tailspin and come up with a "Judges' Pension Bill."

Let's check up on the various representatives in our state legislature and inform ourselves as to the stand they are taking on this bill. If they are true representatives for the people they will certainly oppose such a measure. If they vote for it they should be removed from the payroll of the state of Ohio at the next regular election.

Marion Scouts Enjoy "LIFE IN THE OPEN"

MARION AREA
BOY SCOUT
CAMP JOHN A. OWENS

Scouts love the pool. And you'll be treated to one of the finest all concrete pools, 35x75 feet in size, in this part of the country. Imagine how swell this will feel on a hot summer day. Here is where swimming and life saving are taught. The pool is one of the busiest spots at camp.

This is the Craft Shop. Here you make your real Indian moccasins, your genuine bows and arrows, your metal craft and things of wood. It's equipped with all kinds of tools. Almost anything is taught here. You'll spend a lot of time here if you like to make things.

This is the Ceremonial Plot. Courts of Honor are held here—the ceremony at which Scouts are honored as they earn their merit badges. Imagine sitting around a huge camp fire, which starts as if by magic, for Indian stories and camp sings. This is a swell spot.

Whoa! This is the Cook Shack! Lots of fresh berry pies, ice cream, chicken and other stuff to make your mouth water. Three times a day during camp your old tummy will bulge with delicious food. This alone is worth twice the money. Don't miss it!

52 acres of wooded land located 5 miles south of Marion. A beautiful spot.

Learn:
Life Saving, First Aid and Emergency Service.

A Red Cross representative says that 90% of the boys inducted into the army can't swim and that it takes 5000 Army men to teach them. If you can't swim, do your part and learn now, in one of the finest, biggest, all concrete Scout pools in this part of the country. If you can swim you'll want to pass your life saving tests. And boy, oh boy, think of the fun playing water games in the grand pool. It's always supervised by expert swimmers to avoid danger. Here again the privilege of using the pool through the camp session is worth the price of admission. Parents are always welcome to visit camp and see how thoughtfully and carefully it is operated. Make your reservation early.

Play:
as you are taught Citizenship and Woodcraft Training.

Most boys like Early American Scout traditions and Indian lore. Imagine yourself seated around a huge pile of wood built up in Indian fashion, some quiet cool evening. There will be dozens of other boys there too. At the signal from North Wind the fire roars up as if by magic from cold wood. As the sweet wood smoke drifts by your nostrils you hear thrilling stories of the great West and the adventures of famous Scouts as Kit Carson, Custer, Buffalo Bill and the rest. Then on other evenings the Court of Honor is held here. This is the celebration at which all Scouts are honored for the progress they've made and the new things they've learned.

Thrill:
at the Indian Ceremonial with your secret knowledge of Indian Lore.

Camp Owens is supervised by experts in camping. The boys sleep in mosquito proof buildings or in pup tents as they wish. There is a real program of learning and every boy leaves camp a better boy than when he came. Here he learns many of the interesting things that nature offers, such as bird study, bridge building, trailing, camping, cooking. Many of our present soldiers have saved their own lives and those of others by the things they learned at Scout camps. And the best of it all, it's not only valuable to know but heaps of fun learning it. Once a boy attends a camp he can hardly wait until the camp opens again next year.

Get the Taxpayers' Story

THE SENATE now has a chance to rescue taxpayers from the muddled tax plan imposed on them by the house of representatives.

Everything has been put into the house bill but the kitchen sink. It is a political-legislative stew composed of rather part sawdust and financial confusion. The only excuse for it is that the house could do no better under the existing confusion of January and 1944 campaign fence-fixing.

The senate is in a position to do a better job, and if it did the house then might be able to save itself from the consequences of its own ineptitude. As Rep. Carlson of Kansas, author of the only clear proposal to be submitted during house debate of income tax reform, declared Monday: "No problem is permanently solved until it is correctly solved. The new problem is no exception to this rule."

The question is: Should personal income taxpayers be placed on a current basis? If the answer is yes, then they should be put on a current basis. If the answer is no, then there is no merit in halfway measures.

The first thing the senate should do is arrange to call as witnesses on tax reform representative taxpayers from various income groups. The American people want to pay their taxes currently; their judgment should be given more weight than the judgment of citizens who may be experts in politics and the use of taxation to accomplish social objectives but clearly don't know beans about the problem of taxpayers.

Key Men Must Be Replaceable

DEATH of Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews and other military officials in an airplane crash in Iceland is another reminder that total, global war is vastly different from the outdated, narrow concepts of conflict.

Gen. Andrews was commander-in-chief of American forces in the European war theater, a key man. His loss undoubtedly will complicate the conduct of the war in that area. But really serious complications would reflect weakness in the war organization.

Generals are exposed to extraordinary risk in modern warfare; many already have been killed. Unless they are replaceable with a minimum of dislocation, there is a weakness in military staff organization. All key men should work under standing instructions to divide responsibility as equitably as possible with those immediately under them as insurance against the contingency of death, a rule that should be applied all the way to the top of the war organization. His countrymen mourn Gen. Andrews' untimely death while hoping it may not interfere with the business at hand, which is to win the war against Germany.

Subsidized Coal Production

IN THE light of the common expectation that United Mine Workers will be able to get in effect from the government what they could not get in principle from private operation—a substantial increase in income—the possible result of long-continued government operation of the coal industry is being examined.

If the private operators are correct in their argument that the industry cannot stand an increase in the wage factor of operating costs in the coal mining industry, and if government operation continues, perhaps for the duration of the war, subsidized coal production is a distinct possibility. The situation would be similar to that in the railroad industry under government operation during the last war.

One of the first moves was to increase the income of railroad employes. Freight rates also were raised, yet the net cost to the public of 26 months [illegible] government operation was estimated by [illegible] D. Hines, who succeeded William G. [illegible] as director general of railroads, at $1,300,000. Mr. Hines justified this as an expenditure essential to the war effort, explaining that if it had not been made—that is, if the railroads had remained in private hands—an essential service would have suffered. In the case of the coal industry, it has not been made clear how long the government expects to operate the mines, but it is beginning to be clear that if temporary operation has the effect of increasing operating costs the owners, themselves, might welcome government operation and government subsidy of any deficit for the duration as the only means of averting bankruptcy.

Eternal Vigilance

REVERSAL of a previous opinion that could have been used unscrupulously to deny freedom of speech, press and worship is a testimonial to the supreme court of the United States and to the eternal vigilance by which liberty is preserved.

The original decision upheld the claimed right of certain units of local government to collect peddlers' taxes from distributors of literature—Jehovah's Witnesses literature, it so happened. The reversal makes it plain that under the Constitution distribution of literature is guaranteed in the Bill of Rights.

The case had enlisted the efforts of American Newspaper Publishers association and American Civil Liberties union in cooperation with the religious sect involved, further proof that when a question of liberty is raised free men find common ground for the defense of their rights.

News Behind the News

Patterson and Jeffers Love Feast May Not Be End of Dispute Over Materials.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 7 — The great peace which filled the public interments of warring executives' off-days caused none involved to take off their fingernails. They are still ready for scratching. The treaty between hubber-maker Jeffers and war-maker Patterson is attributed — significantly enough — to Ferdinand Eberstadt, New Yorker, who left the war production board in the Nelson row but was unable to get his promised position in the army.

Senators have direct information that Eberstadt brought Jeffers and Patterson together at luncheon. Under his benign auspices, both threw their arms around each other and agreed to take a trip around the country to see if conflicting claims for machinery could not be worked out amicably.

The strange identity of the peacemaker, who had been fired by Nelson, has encouraged a wide variety of speculation. The most natural deduction is that Nelson's ancient enemies are again on the loose. This speculation was in no wise diminished when Nelson appointed Arthur Whiteside director of a new office of civilian requirements. Nelson indignantly denied he was trimming Jeffers. Most of the newspapers thought otherwise and not without justification, as Whiteside was apparently given control of everything in rubber except production.

Tax Compromise

The Robertson-Forand pay-as-you-go tax plan passed the house as a compromise, and on the surface it was one. Robertson is a Virginia Democrat, more Democratic than New Dealish. Forand is a Rhode Island New Dealer, and strictly labor. Their bill is about seven-tenths of the Ruml plan. It would lift $7,000,000,000 of the $10,000,000,000 burden from 1942 personal income taxes and put a pay-as-you-go system in operation after July 1.

Essentially, in basic theory, it is the CIO way of doing the job. It makes Robertson angry to say so but not Forand. The original theory of a 10 per cent withholding tax (now made 20 per cent) was proposed by Democratic Senator Bennett Clark, of Missouri. The CIO took it up with a demand for discrimination in relieving the burden on various incomes. All are not treated alike. The CIO no doubt will hail the result as a victory.

Republicans put it through when they were unable to get the Ruml plan. In doing so, they merely corrected a strategic error committed two months ago. They could have done the same thing then, but chose to send the proposal back to the house ways and means committee, hoping the Ruml plan would finally emerge. Their idea now is that the senate will have a chance to iron the matter out and it will.

The Robertson-Forand plan is indisputably the most complicated tax suggestion ever enacted by a congress. Most taxpayers will require a lawyer.

Our Plane Losses

Growing losses of our Flying Fortresses in daylight bombings on Germany are proof enough that the Nazis have developed new methods of defense. The development's are in tactics rather than in counter weapons. They send groups of six or seven attackers against outside planes in our formation and look sharply for stragglers.

Some losses on the last few raids occurred because our formations were not closely maintained. It is too much to assume off-hand, therefore, that these losses will cause us to drop daylight raiding, as the British did—or that even the loss of 30 RAF bombers in the Dortmund raid means diminution of our main current attack on Germany.

Tunisian Outlook

The Bon Peninsula to which the Nazis might choose to retire from Tunis, is somewhat like Bataan, mountainous, with good beaches, and no ports. But there is one exception—no Corregidor fortress to back it up. Hitler's do-or-die hordes might choose to die there. But certainly the end should come sooner than at Bataan. Betting is heavy that the Tunisian situation will be cleaned up within a month at most.

Beavers Invade Farms

By The Associated Press

CHARLESTON, W. Va.—Those pesky beavers are at it again in West Virginia, so many of them will have to start building new lodges.

During the past years, the conservation commission said the animals not only lived on their normal diet of willow, birch and other woods, but got away with quite a few garden and farm crops. In addition, the fur-bearing animals were flooding too many meadows in some of the counties.

To put a halt to the destruction, 23 beavers were live-trapped and taken to areas on state and federal lands where conditions for their establishment were more favorable.

"SWEDISH NIGHTINGALE"

Hitler at Bottom of Manpower Barrel

A Survey by The Associated Press.

ADOLF HITLER seems to be having a tough time manning his "European fortress" with capable help.

Observers have watched trainloads of soldiers passing across Sweden from Norway and noted that the fuehrer is mounting his Norwegian defenses with extremely young and extremely old men. That indicates the trend.

However, it must be remembered that Germany is fighting strongly and still is capable of mobilizing new divisions to deliver heavy blows, as it did in 1918.

Hitler still has masses of highly trained, specialized soldiers to bear the brunt of front line fighting—partly gathered from remnants of shattered divisions. His difficulty is to raise reserves to cushion the force of offensives which the United Nations are expected to throw against the continent.

Military commenators and the Swedish press estimated at the turn of the year, when the Red army was on the march, that Hitler had 70 reserve divisions, out of a total of 12,000,000 men under arms, including the Todt organization, labor service units and other military auxiliaries.

The Russian winter offensive tore great gaps in the ranks of the Nazi eastern armies, cream of Germany's forces. Hitler admitted half a million dead, but most observers estimate he lost twice that many, not counting prisoners and wounded who will never return to battle.

While attrition takes an increasing toll on the eastern front, Hitler is obliged by invasion threats to muster enough men to stand guard all around the continent, in addition to policing occupied countries and the homeland.

His manpower problem requires the most radical solution.

First move was total mobilization. Women, men incapable of bearing weapons, even crippled soldiers, were sent into factories. Stores and workshops by tens of thousands were closed to release men for the army.

Men were withdrawn from banks, insurance companies, municipal services, ministries and business houses — men between the ages of 20 and 45 who were experienced at their jobs but of inferior quality, for the most part, in warfare.

OCCUPIED countries were affected by similar measures. It was the most thorough combout yet attempted, an effort to set up a reserve of at least three million, reports from Germany said.

Gen. Walter von Unruh and a staff of experts were put in charge of the job.

Men were given six weeks of intensive training, then sent to posts where drill continues while they stand watch.

An estimated half million 17-year-olds now are being called for labor service. But instead of the normal labor service—six months of conditioning and disciplinary work—the boys are being trained as soldiers in the toughest Prussian tradition so they can go into the field upon reaching the military age of 18.

One objective of Hitler's interviews with leaders of satellite countries in recent weeks apparently was to scrape together additional soldiers or workmen. Forced recruiting was introduced in the Baltic countries, according to the Swedish press, after a fruitless effort to obtain volunteers for the east front. Individuals in the classes of 1919 to 1924 have been called up so far.

The Nazis are relying heavily on Hitler "youth" to shoulder a man's job. They are called up, for example, as air force aides. Although their military tasks are not clearly defined, apparently they must help man antiaircraft defenses.

Boys so used are all younger than 18, because at that age the armed forces snap them up.

Other methods of freeing manpower are applied. Two hundred and fifty thousand French prisoners of war are being used as workmen. Because they no longer are guarded or kept in internment camps, several thousand guards have been released for regular duty.

Women are being used as aides in army headquarters. Two hundred and fifty Poles are being transported daily from Warsaw to Germany to take over the jobs of Germans called to the colors. Warsaw streetcar motormen and conductors are drafted for the same job in German cities. Poles whom the Germans once scorned as unfit to associate with now are being put into German army uniforms and used in France and Norway.

If all such drastic and makeshift measures fail to provide the men Hitler needs, he can fall back on the "landwacht" organization, similar to the English home guard but trained mainly in rifle shooting, or even on German civilian officials who are trained by the army in case they are needed in emergency.

TOTAL mobilization decrees have forced an economic revolution on the German middle class, creating new cause for resentment and complaint.

The Frankfurter Zeitung, under the title "The Way of Revolution," frankly asks whether closing of shops and small factories "won't kill private initiative and eventually lead to complete state ownership. Almost everyone can imagine a little of the way back from complete state control, but none knows how far back toward the old system it will be possible to go."

Shop owners, unable to resist, are mumbling openly, fearful they never again will have their stores. The rapidity with which buildings are being transformed into residences increased this feeling. They are complaining, too, that the closings were done on a political basis and those who are in disfavor with Nazi local leaders are the first to be hit. The program has increased the power of the Nazi party to a vast degree.

Das Schwarz Korps acknowledges this in an article on abuses. The paper cited examples of one party leader who closed down a tiny residence shop run by an old couple who could not work in factories, but did not close his own shop which had three usable young people, lacked sufficient stock for operation and had large premises suitable for residences under the bombed-out housing program.

The current drive to get a retailer out of his shop and into a factory or the army is a continuation of a consolidation begun in the spring of 1942.

Economics Minister Walther Funk, recognizing the worries of middle class proprietors, promised the owners they would be the first to be considered in the reconstruction after the war. But he warned that political and professional suitability would be considered; in other words their present cooperation in the mobilization would largely determine the retailers' future.

Weltwoche, Swiss weekly, summarized the situation, which can only be considered as an important one with regard to morale, thus:

"Total mobilization of labor and power, which takes every citizen without distinction, besides gaining soldiers and workers serves as a political instrument for the exclusion of possible sources of opposition. German propaganda is in the difficult position of having to try to arouse enthusiasm for an economic system which Germans had considered Bolshevism and the essence of non-culture."

> "National strength in wartime or peacetime ultimately becomes a matter of manpower to convert resources into usable form, to feed the population, or to do the fighting. This is an account compiled from sources in Switzerland and Sweden of Germany's increasingly acute manpower shortage and its effect not only on the war but on the possible post-war structure of Germany.

Castillo de San Marco at St. Augustine, Fla., are the oldest complete fortifications standing in the United States.

"But I can't count sheep to cure my insomnia, Doc. Since rationing, it makes me drool!"

It's Doubtful

Morale Argument To Justify Sports Cannot Stand Up Well Under Critical Examination.

By DAMON RUNYON

IT seems to me that sport has less to explain about on the score of the moon on [illegible] of war than any other field of endeavor.

Horse racing continues unabated in [illegible] places in the south and east. Despite [illegible] restrictions in transportation, 124,279 [illegible] managed to get to the various courses [illegible] week and to bet $5,803,120. It was the [illegible] point to date of the spending orgy that is [illegible] on throughout the country, at least via [illegible] outlets over the same period of time.

I must explain that the sum mentioned is not all represent new money. Much of it is the same money taken out and going back into the pari-mutuels, but the total most certainly reflects the prodigality of the greatest era of gambling in our history, due to the war [illegible].

Big league and a little minor league baseball is progressing under some slight inconvenience due to the inconsiderate draft [illegible] nabbing many star players, but patronage is fair under the circumstances. Indoor sports of all kinds is thriving to a remarkable degree, particularly boxing, which is fortunate in [illegible] good boxers in the service are permitted to [illegible] from their soldier duties to accept side engagements at their trade.

Most of the sport activity is along the Atlantic seaboard and in the middle west. The Pacific coast is considered a war area and no racing has been allowed there for some time, except at one comparatively small track near San Francisco.

The reason racing was banned in the southern part of the state is because it was feared that in the event of air raids by the enemy, the roads needed for military purposes would become congested, a sound theory, indeed, though it produced some anguish among the racing promoters.

THE Southern California tracks, large and small, are now occupied by the army. Apparently the Atlantic seaboard is not deemed a theater of war, or at least not to the extent that big gatherings cause worry. The Pacific Coast Baseball league is operating but its most lucrative feature, night baseball, is out for the duration, a wise precaution against panics in blackouts or in actual raids.

I believe it is argued that the continuance of sport helps both the civilian and service morale, especially the latter, the idea being that the soldiers like to hear about the baseball and fight results, though not so much is said for their interest in racing. In fact, some pessimists are inclined to doubt that news that many thousands of our citizens have sufficient time on their hands these days to journey to race tracks and spend whole afternoons there betting their money like mad is a great cheer to the men fighting in the jungles of the South Pacific islands and in North Africa.

These same pessimists have a similar view of all sport of a large scale and point out that there are many communities which have no race tracks or professional baseball fields and no [illegible] field arenas for boxer-soldiers on leave to display their wares for a piece of the gate but which nonetheless maintain a high civilian morale.

The pessimists say that in such communities the spectacle of crowds devoting their afternoons to the sport of kings and the national game and the manly art might prove depressing to morale rather than uplifting it, because it might produce the impression that there were a awful lot of persons around with nothing to do.

AS a sports enthusiast, I am glad to see all games prosper, and I believe that some do help morale. However, I recognize that not all civilians and not all soldiers are fans. I concede to those who have written me on the subject that it is a debatable question if, in these times, large assemblages of the apparently idle as sports spectators, betting huge sums of money, are good for morale or for sports, either.

It is a question if it is good for the morale of civilians working hard on war production or for the morale of soldiers who are commencing to get a bit irked on observing among sport spectators large numbers of able-bodied gentlemen in civilian apparel and who in some places are asking pointed questions of these gents. It seems to me sport has here a problem that is worth serious consideration, though I confess I have no solution to offer.

The Flag Code

Jack Stinnett Writes from Washington

Decoration Day is just around the corner. That means everyone who has a flag should display it on that day.

What I'm wondering is whether everyone knows that congress has laid down the law about displaying, saluting and honoring the flag.

For example, if Decoration Day is rainy, [illegible] windy or otherwise affected by "inclement weather," the flag should not be flown at all and that until noon on that day, it should be flown at half mast. That last law is probably violated more often than any other in the whole flag code.

Decoration Day is just one of several when the flag is to be flown. According to [illegible] as important days are New Year's, Inauguration Day, Lincoln's Birthday, Washington's Birthday, Army Day, Easter Sunday, Mother's Day, Flag Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Constitution day, Columbus Day, Navy Day, Armistice Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas—[illegible] any other days that the President shall designate and all state birthdays and holidays.

There is a score of other regulations. The U. S. flag can't be draped around a [illegible] for instance.

Most interesting, however, is the fact that the old flag salute for civilians—raising the right arm to parallel the brow, with the palm open—is no longer good form, or even permissable. That, says congress, is too much like the fascist and nazi salutes. The Shickelgrubers swiped it from us, therefore we will no longer have any part of it.

Just what will happen to you if you don't obey these laws is nothing, except that you had better not try to look your neighbors in the face. Congress has provided no penalties. But if you consistently violate this statute, watch out for the FBI, J. Edgar Hoover's boys will want to know why.

WOMAN'S KINDNESS WINS HER REWARD

Makes "Dime and Prayer" Gifts to Soldiers.

By The Associated Press

MACON, Ga., May 7—Macon's "Dime and Prayer Mother," Mrs. R. A. Godfrey, has the promise of a winter home in Miami, Fla., all because of her kindness to a lonely soldier.

Mrs. Godfrey, who has endeared herself to scores of service men through her gifts of a 10-cent coin and a printed prayer, told this story:

She went to a Macon hotel last Saturday in response to a call from a woman who identified herself as "Mrs. G. N. Hollan." The white-haired Mrs. Hollan explained she had come to Macon to see Mrs. Godfrey because of the latter's courtesy to her son in the army.

"You gave him a dime and a prayer last October in front of a cafe * * * while he was stationed at Camp Wheeler," she said. "It meant more than anything in the world to him and he means more than anything in the world to me. That is why I have wanted to find you and do something for you in return.

"So," she concluded, "I am giving you a winter home in Miami, Fla. My son says it's awfully cold in Macon in the winter, so perhaps you will enjoy using it."

Arrangements have been completed for the transfer of the property, Mrs. Godfrey said.

Views of Workers Given on Causes of Absenteeism

BY GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 7 — Many theories have been advanced as to the causes of absenteeism in war plants. Labor leaders have been inclined to assign illness, bad living conditions, and transportation difficulties as principal causes, while others have claimed that a large part of the absenteeism is for inexcusable reasons. Actually the problem is many sided, reaching deep into human psychology with all of its unknowns. However, to canvass and record the ideas of war workers themselves, the Institute had 118 field reporters located in five main production areas throughout the nation talk to workers in war factories about the problem.

Each reported put this question to workers with whom he talked:

"How do you yourself account for absenteeism among workers?"

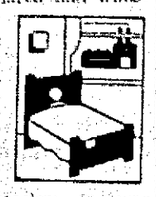
The results show that whereas about half of the workers felt that most of the absenteeism is caused by illness or fatiguing work and long hours, more than one-third minced no words in assigning a great part to unflattering causes.

Of those who felt that much of the absenteeism is inexcusable, the greatest number said it was due to "irresponsibility and laziness," just a great many of the absentees "just don't realize the seriousness of their jobs."

Another group almost equally as large said they thought that "too much money" was responsible for a lot of the absenteeism. According to these workers, people are making so much money that they don't mind losing a day now and then. Others said in this connection that many workers were staying away from work to spend their money, to take care of personal affairs, or work around their houses.

"Drinking . . . hangovers . . . too much weekending," were mentioned as responsible for much of the absenteeism by the next largest group who felt a great part of the absenteeism was without good excuse.

Surprisingly small was the group which declared that transportation difficulties were responsible. The actual percentage was negligible — two per cent. In many areas transportation has been cited as a major cause of absenteeism in war.



Among a miscellany of causes cited were "taking time off to see families . . . taking time off to be with husbands or boy friends on furloughs . . . taking time off to hire someone to care for children."

Following is a table showing the causes mentioned by the workers in the order of frequency with which they were mentioned:

Illness	26%
Fatigue and Strain from Long Hours of Work	28
Irresponsibility, lack of Interest in Work, Laziness	13
Too Much Pay	12
Drinking, Hangovers, Too Much Weekending	10
Transportation Difficulties	2
Miscellaneous	6
Don't Know or No Opinion	12

The total percentages in the table come to more than one hundred percent because some of the workers cited more than one cause as important.

Marion County Vote Cost Figures Low

Comparative election costs listed in a report recently prepared by the secretary of state give Marion county a favorable rating, county election officials pointed out today. Using the report as a basis, they worked out figures showing that Marion county's $1.03 per vote cost in the last general election was next to the lowest of any of the 27 counties maintaining permanent registration files. Costs ranged as high as $1.83 in Lucas county. Marion county's total cost in the election was $13,843.47 and the vote was 13,377.

Figures for other counties in this area, none of which have registration files, are as follows with the total vote and total cost of last year's election listed: Harding, 9,938, $8,595.64; Delaware, 8,968, $9,089.49; Union 6,507, $7,315.35; Wyandot, 6,423, $7,116.16; Crawford, 10,478, $10,490.53; Morrow, 5,314, $5,367.

County Road Work Scheduled

58 Miles To Be Surface Treated in Program Estimated To Cost $33,918; Bids To Be Taken.

Plans for surface treating program of 58.16 miles of Marion county roads were announced today by County Engineer Walter W. Johnson. Advertisement for bids on the project will appear in The Star for the first time tomorrow.

The original program mapped by Engineer Johnson and submitted to the public roads administration for approval called for treating of 7.2 additional miles of highway. The federal agency failed to release surface treating material for improvement of four roads because "these roads were not heavily traveled to warrant repair." Roads slashed from the program included a section of the DeCliff road in the northwestern section of the county, a section of the Ashley road in the southeastern part of the county near the Morrow county line, part of the Cardington road from the Claridon-Westfield road to the Morrow county line and several sections of the Whetstone river road in the southeastern part of the county.

The entire program has been estimated to cost $33,918.18 by Engineer Johnson. Bids on the project dare not exceed this figure. Bids will be received until 10 a. m., central war time, May 24 at the office of the county commissioners. The sealed bids will be opened at this time and the contract will be awarded at that time or within the period allowed by law.

The project is estimated to require 162,176 gallons of liquid asphalt and approximately 6,938 tons of stone chips.

Explaining what the surface treating program consists of Mr. Johnson said county road maintenance workers patch holes in all roads before the surface treating begins. Following the road repair 35 gallons of liquid asphalt is applied to each square yard of roadway under pressure and a coating of 30 pounds of stone chips per square yard is applied to the asphalt.

Roads included in the program include parts of the Marseilles-Galion road, the Kenton-Galion road, Hillman-Ford road, Kenton-Marseilles road, Marseilles-Hardin road, Mt. Olive-Agosta road, Ground Hog pike, Mt. Olive-Green Camp road, Boundary road, Prospect-Green Camp road, Klingle road, Almendinger road, Waldo-Western road, Waldo-Fulton road, Yake road, Owens road, Caledonia-Northern road, Linn-Hipsher road, Marion-Williamsport road, Garden City pike, Holland road, Bennett street extension, Campbell road, White Oaks road, Barks road, Somerlot-Huffman road, Gooding pike, Vernon Heights boulevard, Clover avenue extension and Merchant avenue extension.

SECOND SHOOTING REPORTED AT FIELD

By The Associated Press

SELFRIDGE FIELD, Mich., May 7—A second shooting—the wounding of a civilian by a sentry—occurred at Selfridge field today, less than 24 hours after the disclosure that the former commanding officer of this army air base had been arrested following the wounding of a Negro private.

Rep. Shafer (R-Mich) said at Washington he had been assured by Chairman May (D-Ky) of the house military affairs committee that an investigation of the shooting of the private would be made.

Capt. Richard Ramey, public relations officer at the base, said today's shooting occurred at 4 a. m. when Private William Bridges, 23-year-old Negro from Montclair, N. J., fired a shot into the chest of a civilian who had ignored three challenges and three warning shots.

The wounded civilian was identified as William H. Hasse, 54, whose last known address was Grand Rapids, Mich. His condition at the army base hospital here was reported as "fair."

Ramey said Bridges reported Hasse and another civilian apparently climbed over a fence on the south side of Selfridge field, that when challenged, neither of the men answered but continued to advance towards the sentry, who fired three warning shots before taking aim at one of the intruders. The other civilian escaped in the darkness.

An official statement issued said Private William McRae, 24, motor vehicle driver for the base garage, was wounded at approximately 1 a. m. Wednesday by a revolver shot "allegedly fired by" Colonel Colman.

No further details were given. McRae's condition was reported "fair."

MARION PLANT

animals. The soybean oil, as prior to the U. S. declaration of war, is being directed to manufacturers of food products almost exclusively.

Since taken over by the Central Soya Co., an Illinois concern, a program of plant improvement has been instituted and employment has been trebled in the last six months alone. Last fall 30 workers were employed and now almost 90 are fulltime workers. Walter E. Flumerfelt, vice president of the company and manager of the local plant, announced recently this figure would be increased as the plant swings back into capacity production after a several week layoff for overhauling of machinery in the processing plant.

Trip Through Plant

Following a patriotic flag raising ceremony at the plant last Saturday morning Mr. Flumerfelt escorted a reporter through the plant. Starting in a large storage building, the reporter saw bean carrying devices and various other types of machinery used in the company's operations under construction. The plant included a sheet metal department and a well-equipped machine shop in which were found a turret lathe, a heavy-duty and several smaller pieces of power machinery. In another corner of the shop a welder was busily completing another piece of machinery. At the opposite end of the shop was located a large stock room containing a thousand or more parts needed frequently on the soybean processing line.

Mr. Flumerfelt explained that the machine shop would soon be moved to another part of the plant. He said the building in which the shop is now located would then be used entirely as a warehouse for the company's new line of feeds, known as Mix Master feed. The brand is a standard product in other plants owned by the Central Soya Co.

Expeller Department

Next was shown the company's battery of expellers. Heavy machinery dominates this section of the plant, which consists mainly of six large expellers, each capable of handling about 700 bushels of beans daily or a net total of about 4,200 bushels for the entire battery. All six units were going full blast last Saturday, but Mr. Flumerfelt said up until six weeks ago all six units had never been in operation at one time.

It is the expeller plant in which the important soybean oil is removed, leaving a pulp-like substance from which feeds are produced.

From the expeller plant the tour continued through the feed mill and large storage rooms. Throughout the tour of this section the plant manager pointed out a number of improvements planned for the future. Most of the improvements are being planned either to quicken the production pace or as guards against possible fire hazards.

Other improvements already made, or in the process of completion, are designed solely for the improvement of working conditions in the large plant. Among improvements made for workmen are: (1) installation of sanitation facilities, (2) laying out of a large parking lot adjacent to the processing plant and (3) remodeling of old production facilities lessening hazards for workmen.

SENATE PAY-GO VOTE DUE SOON

Money Problems Occupy Attention of Congressional Groups Today.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 7—Pocketbook problems kept the capital busy today with these developments due to affect the average citizen's cash:

1—Senate supporters of the modified Ruml skip-a-year tax plan sought a committee showdown, seemingly sure of their votes;

2—Worried by wage disputes, the war labor board headed swiftly toward a new stabilization crisis;

3—The war manpower commission considered a nationwide 48-hour week, but probed its probable effect on prices;

4—The house stood its ground on economy quarrels, rejecting senate changes in appropriations bill.

Also high in the day's news was the start of a new Republican campaign against a fourth term—and the return of Leon Henderson to the Washington scene.

Expects Vote Today

With the briefest public hearing the senate finance committee ever held on a major revenue bill slated to end this morning, Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) looked for a decisive vote on pay-as-you-go legislation this afternoon—and predicted the result "will be written around the Ruml-Carlson bill." That measure would wipe out a full year's taxes, as compared to the house-approved 75 per cent abatement bill. Advocates claimed the support of at least a dozen of the 21 committee members.

Meanwhile, a three-man WLB panel continued the coal wage dispute hearings without representation or participation by the United Mine Workers who defied it, while an American Federation of Labor spokesman said the board was "tottering on its last legs," and storm signals multiplied elsewhere.

Board members who sought power to remove "inequalities" with wage increases gloomily reported they got no encouragement from stabilization director James F. Byrnes in a several-hour session yesterday, despite predictions that otherwise regional—and perhaps national—labor members of the WLB soon might be forced to resign, due to union pressure.

48-Hour Week

WMC officials said the nationwide 48-hour week was being considered but that it involved too many problems for a quick decision. Chief worry was that extension of the longer work week—now in force only in labor short areas and three industries—to the entire nation might bring demands for higher price ceilings to meet its premium pay.

Back on Capitol Hill, the house turned thumbs down on two of the senate's changes in its treasury-postoffice appropriations bill—one vote trimming $700,000 off the senate-set sum for foreign funds control. Today, a battle was expected on the house's refusal of franked mail privileges to government agencies, which the senate would grant.

The political front found the G.O.P. national committee sending out to thousands of small newspapers a new clipsheet, which carried a plea to dispel any belief that "there is but one among us qualified to rule." Titled "On the Home Front," the clipsheet said "we are all Americans together who dread the thought of perpetuating just one man in the White House."

And Henderson, former price administrator who once issued the rationing and price ceiling rules, came back in a private capacity to interpret them for business men—as chairman of the board of editors of the Research Institute of America, Inc.

REDS CHARGE POLES SPIED IN RUSSIA

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, May 7—Andrei J. Vishinski, vice commissar for foreign affairs, told American and British newspapermen today representatives of the Polish government-in-exile in London had engaged in espionage activities in Russia and declared some of those involved already had admitted their guilt and been sentenced.

Former Ambassador Stanislaw Kot himself, Vishinski asserted, had admitted being involved in these activities and had expressed his regret.

(Kot is now serving as minister of information with the Polish government in London, a post to which he was appointed last March 19).

Asked why the Poles should be engaged in espionage in Russia—a nation with which they signed a mutual assistance and friendship agreement on July 30, 1941—Vishinski replied:

"Nobody spies out of charity."

The accusations against the Polish representatives were contained in a paper which Vishinski read to the correspondents and which he said had been sent to the Polish government in London.

The paper also accused Polish military leaders of refusing to send to the Soviet-German front the Polish army which was organized in Russia with the cooperation of Soviet authorities.

The famous hanging gardens of Babylon were devised by Nebuchadnezzar to please his mountain-bred queen.

tank assaults and infantry attacks.

U. S. detachments on the British left flank attacked the highlands guarding Chouigui, 21 miles west of Tunis and by 10 a. m., forward elements had reached their objective in spite of strong enemy resistance. The troops involved were among those who had taken Mateur, the communications junction between Tunis and Bizerte.

A little north of the Chouigui sector, other Americans crossed the river Tine and attacked the ridge on the east bank along a sector of several miles under heavy machine-gun and mortar fire.

Still farther north, tank-supported U. S. detachments mopped up the last axis opposition on Djebel Achkel, on the south shore of Lake Achkel, and on high ground called Djebel Zarour six miles to the southeast (across the Mateur-Bizerte highway).

Yesterday's furious air offensive, which eclipsed anything yet seen in the African campaign, set many new records, including one of the greatest strikes against enemy shipping yet achieved from North African bases.

27 Ships Hit

Twenty-seven vessels were hit, the largest number recorded in one day, and of these 12 were definitely sunk and the others damaged and left burning.

The victims included one destroyer, seven motor barges and four small boats loaded with men, all sunk. Another destroyer was among the damaged craft. Most of this damage was done by medium bombers.

(Communiques from Cairo and Valletta told of other blows against the axis' Mediterranean shipping. Liberator bombers of the Ninth U. S. Air force attacked moles and harbor installations of Reggio De Calabria, Italy, and scored direct hits on at least two large merchant ships, one throwing up flame and white smoke.

(Malta-based fighters attacked small enemy surface craft off Sicily with cannon and machine-gun fire and left them listing. Malta bombers set fires in Marsala, Sicily, last night.)

Twenty axis aircraft were shot down over their own air fields in Tunisia and three others during the sea sweeps. Ten allied planes are missing.

Allied air forces, in a tremendous offensive launched in coordination with the ground assault shot down 20 enemy planes in combat yesterday and sank a total of 11 small enemy vessels, the communique said.

Ten allied planes were reported missing from the widespread operations.

(The German high command said the allies had penetrated German and Italian positions deeply at one point, "although numerous enemy attacks were repulsed and 12 enemy tanks were destroyed and several hundred prisoners were taken." The communique said the allied infantry and tank formations were greatly superior and were supported by strong air force units.)

Tanks Near Ferryville

An advance to within nine miles of Bizerte along the road from Mateur would put the American forces on the immediate outskirts of Ferryville, a docking and repair center only eight miles across Lake Bizerte from the naval base itself.

The communique reported that all the gains made by the British First army in the advance toward Tunis have been "firmly secured."

"Our armor has made further considerable advances toward Tunis," it added.

The British Eighth army made a local attack in the sector of Souar, west of Enfidaville, and considerable artillery and patrol activity was reported from that southern battlefront.

In addition to the almost constant sweeps over the battle area, allied aircraft raided the docks and shipping at Favignana, a small island off the west coast of Sicily.

In addition to the 11 ships announced definitely as sunk, many others were sunk in attacks on Sicilian ports, the communique said. It also disclosed that fighter-bombers of the desert air force, in addition to blowing up a destroyer in the gulf of Tunis as reported earlier, scored direct hits on another destroyer.

The roads to Tunis and Bizerte were choked with allied troops moving up under their aerial umbrella to strike the final blow at the German and Italian forces in Africa.

Greatest Air Show

The Northwest African air forces put on the greatest aerial offensive of the African campaign to blast a path for the advancing infantrymen, virtually driving the axis air force from the skies.

As a result the ground forces heading toward Tunis were able to drive down the main road stretching through the Medjerda valley without opposition from axis bombers or strafing planes. More than 2,000 sorties were carried out in this tremendous effort.

Other allied planes continued to batter at enemy shipping in the gulf of Tunis, the Sicilian straits and the harbors of Sicily. An axis destroyer was blown up in the gulf of Tunis and four barges and four small ships were sunk in attacks on two convoys. A merchant vessel was left burning.

More enemy ships were hit during a heavy pounding of the harbors at Trapani and Marsala, Sicily, and the harbor installations were damaged.

As the battle grew in fury, Gen. Henri Honore Giraud repeated his prediction that the axis would be defeated in Africa by the end of May and said "it is important to fight at the same time on the North sea channel, on the Mediterranean and on the Russian front."

He said the morale of French troops was strengthened by the new offensive and the knowledge that in a few weeks they would be receiving new equipment to replace their old rifles and cannon.

Of the American troops he said: "The American Army is young. It is brave. Its services function very well and its material is of the first quality. As it becomes accustomed to battle, which will not take long, it will be a most powerful element in the liberation of Europe. At present its aviation rivals the RAF in the Mediterranean battlefield."

Campaign in Last Phase, General Says

By The Associated Press

LONDON, May 7 — Gen. Sir Harold Alexander declared in an order of the day to his 18th army group that "we have reached the last phase of this campaign" and "are going to drive the enemy into the sea," the Algiers radio said today in a brodcast recorded by The Associated Press.

The broadcast gave this quotation:

"Soldiers of the Allies:

"We have reached the last phase of this campaign. We have grouped our victorious armies and are going to drive the enemy into the sea."

It said the order of the day was issued on the eve of the new allied offensive, that is, night before last.

The order of the day continued:

"We have got them just where we want them—with their backs to the wall.

"You have proved yourselves masters of the battlefield and therefore you will win this last great battle which will give us the whole of North Africa.

"The eyes of the world are on you and the hopes of those at home.

"Forward then to victory"

Duce and Stooges Sorrowfully Say Last Farewells

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Mussolini the duce and his stooges are giving a realistic exhibition of condemned men saying farewells after walking their last mile.

That really isn't surprising, if you make allowance for the emotional strain they must be undergoing as they see disaster nose-diving on them. There can be small doubt that Italy is facing a crisis.

Word from Tunisia—lying only 90 miles from Sicily—is that the allies today continue to press in about the cornered axis forces in the Bizerte and Tunis sectors for the coup de grace. Many ominous signs warrant the Italians in fearing an allied invasion of their fatherland as Tunisia falls.

Indeed, the Paris radio says a big allied convoy has sailed from Gibraltar. It's reported to include 20 transports loaded with landing barges and armored vehicles. What would such a convoy be up to, wandering about the Mediterranean?

Unrest In Balkans

Unrest is seething in the Balkans—the territory Mussolini once naively considered his "sphere of influence," while Hitler grinned. The Turks are polishing up the buttons on their uniforms—just in case.

Small wonder, then, that the Italian dictator should be quaking. I'll wager he has bigger pouches under his eyes than I saw him wearing at the Munich conference. Then he was terrified Hitler would go to war; now he's terrified because he knows Hitler can't make war vigorously enough to save Italy.

On the anniversary of Mussolini's creation of his empire in 1936, he has declaimed to his people:

"The great enterprise is not finished; it is simply interrupted.  we will return."

Carlo Scorzio, secretary of the Fascist party, has told Italy: "should we fail, we must fail with honor and dignity."

So Mussolini and his henchmen are preparing their country for the shock of final defeat. But he won't return to his African empire. Little Haile Selassie has resumed the throne of the Lion of Judah. Other territories have gone by the board. Mussolini should have been with us when I toured his great colonization zone in Libya a short time ago.

Natives Return

The colonists had fled with Montgomery's advance, and the Senussi had come back from the desert to which the Italians had driven them. Thousands of neatly whitewashed farm houses, with "duce" painted in letters two feet high on their walls, stood as whited markers of the grave of his imperial dreams.

The allied high command continues to let the axis do all the talking about invasion plans. The only thing we can say with certainty is that it would be logical for the United Nations to strike a quick blow at least against Sicily and Sardinia in conjunction with the finish of the Tunisian battle.

Such an operation would serve the double purpose of unblocking the shipping route through the Sicilian channel, and paving the way for invasion of the Italian mainland. If these two great islands were seized immediately, this also would effectively cut off the escape of any more axis troops from Tunisia, since they have been making Sicily and Sardinia their first refuges in running the gantlet.

U. S. Tax Expert Called Before Senate Group

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 7—Colin F. Stam, chief of the congressional tax staff, testified today that the house-approved revenue bill failed to put all taxpayers on a pay-as-you-go basis and would cause resentment among those who contribute 60 per cent of taxes.

Stam appeared before the senate finance committee in a brief public meeting preceding a closed session at which advocates hoped to force a showdown on the question of substituting a version of the Rumi-Carlson "skip a year" plan for current taxation for the house-approved bill.

The congressional tax expert told the committee the house bill, which would excuse the first 6 per cent normal tax and the 13 per cent first bracket surtax in putting into effect a 20 per cent withholding levy on wages and salaries, would "cost almost as much as complete forgiveness" of 1942 taxes, as proposed in the Rumi-Carlson plan.

ORATORIO

holds its place among the fines: of the oratorios. It brought homage to the composer to the end of his days. Franz Josef Haydn was born March 31, 1732, at the little Austrian village of Rohrau. His parents were peasants and his home a one-story farmhouse.

The oratorio was one of several civic programs which the chorus plans to present throughout the year. Its presentation was made possible through the efforts of interested persons and the cooperation of the Marion Community Foundation, Inc. The proposed program of the chorus has been underwritten by the Foundation and a fund to assist in defraying expenses has been appropriated by the City Recreation Commission.

E. E. Holt, superintendent of the city schools, spoke briefly on the accomplisments of the Civic Chorus, and told of the expenses connected with the proposed civic program. During the intermission an offering was taken which amounted to approximately $100.

Officers of the chorus are Mrs. Harold K. Mouser, president, Thomas Boltz, vice president, Mrs. Warren J. Wise, Earl T. Smart, treasurer and Mrs. LeRoy Schneider, publicity chairman.

The invocation and benediction were spoken by Dr. S. M. Ingmire, pastor of the church.

Orson Welles Rejected by Army Examiners

By The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD, May 7—He's out of the Army, Orson Welles acknowledges, although "I did everything I possibly could to get in."

The motion picture actor and director said he waived a deferment to appear for induction yesterday—only to be rejected. He'll try to help the war effort as a propagandist, he added.

An induction station official said physical reasons led to Welles' rejection. The actor later explained he suffers from a back ailment.

Japs Report 7,300 Chinese Killed in Battle

By The Associated Press

Japanese imperial headquarters announced in a communique today that Japanese forces in Shansi and Honan provinces of China had killed 7,300 Chinese troops of the 18th division between April 29 and May 3 and taken 2,500 prisoners. The communique, broadcast by the Berlin radio and recorded by The Associated Press, said 169 Japanese soldiers were killed in this fighting in the same period.

The communique said the 18th division of about 15,000 men was encircled and was being annihilated.

COMMANDER GIVES LIFE TO SAVE SUB

Wounded on Deck, He Orders Craft To Submerge.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 7—A submarine skipper whose last gallant order, "take her down," sealed his own death sentence was credited by the navy today with successful attacks on three Japanese ships, the last of which the sub rammed in a dramatic night fight for life.

It was in this final action somewhere in the distant Pacific that the officer rode the conning tower of his submerging submarine to his death rather than expose the craft or crew to enemy gunfire.

He had been wounded a few moments before and knew that the time required to get him safely into the submarine might mean the sub's destruction.

For this sacrifice, Commander Howard W. Gilmore, 40, of New Orleans, La., has been awarded posthumously the congressional medal of honor by President Roosevelt.

The story was told by the navy today, partly in a communique and partly in an accompanying account of the final fight.

The communique, which also reported American air raids against Japanese positions in the central Solomon islands, listed the three last ships attacked successfully by the submarine under Gilmore's command as a medium cargo ship, sunk; a gunboat, damaged and probably sunk; a medium cargo ship, damaged.

"Commander Gilmore gave his life in the action against the gunboat listed above," the communique said. "As he lay on the bridge wounded by enemy machine gunfire he ordered his submarine submerged to save it from destruction."

Farmer Jones Defeats Fred Carone in Armory Mat Event

Continuing to maintain his place at the top of the group of wrestling stars appearing frequently at the Armory arena, Farmer Jones won over Fred Carone in a bitter two-hour event last night.

Jones, an Arkansas pig fancier, copped the opening after a fun-filled, 20-minute tussle. Jones permitted his heavier opponent to apply no less than dozen holds but each time the muscled giant from the Ozark country easily broke Carone's stubborn attempts to resist. The fall finally ended when the Farmer lifted Carone high above the mat and used an airplane spin. Allowing the hefty Bostonian to fall to the padding. Jones then leaped on for an easy body press.

Embarrassed no little by his poor showing in the first fall, Carone came back strong, needing only seven minutes to lock the Farmer in a vicious bear hug. This lone hold was the best hold showed during the entire scrap and it was by far the only offensive play he was able to use to any degree of success.

After a rest of 10 minutes Jones extended the fight for only 35 seconds of the third and deciding fall. Carone rushed from his corner and immediately started to...up another bear hug. Jones wiggled loose and then crashed Carone to the mat with a series of mule kicks followed by a climatic body press.

The one-hour preliminary really set the stage for the action-jammed main-go for in the one hour event Steve Nenoff and Morris Shapiro dished up 32 minutes of excitement.

Nenoff, pinch-hitting for Nick Billins, won the first fall with a step over toe hold which he successfully applied after 22 minutes of uproar. The same hold reversed gave Shapiro the second fall over Nenoff and then the New York City star refused to come back for the "rubber" event. Because of Shapiro's refusal to finish the two remaining minutes Nenoff was awarded the fight.

The 30-minutes preliminary, between Pierre DeGlane and Joe Maich ended with DeGlane winning in 16 minutes with a body press.

Ohio AP Sports Editor

COLUMBUS, O., May 7—The old paste-pot and scissors get another workout today as we clip a quip or two from the columns of Ohio's sports scribes, thereby saving us a lot of work and giving us time to get in a round of golf with one of last year's rejuvenated balls.

The pickings are a bit slim, for several reasons. Jimmy Doyle of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, prize wise cracker, is on vacation—the lucky stiff. Several other scribes just haven't recovered enough from their trip to the Derby to look on the lighter side of things—most of them being long-shot players; others, including yours truly, have a touch of spring fever.

Counting out those in that obtusely-phrased paragraph, here are the best jests from the rest of our guests:

Bill Snypp, Lima News: The only lively feature about the new baseball has been the discussion over how dead it is. Webster says the ball's balata is a milky juice from the bully tree. When dried it forms an elastic gum often used to insulate telephone cables. To date, few of the batters have been contacting long distance. (Must be all right, Bill, for they rang every publicity bell in the country over it.)

Ed McCauley, Cleveland News: Lou Boudreau has listed the men who will represent the Indians in the benefit bowling match with the Linsz team Monday night. He'll use Smith, Cullenbine, Salveson, Mack, Keltner and Denning as regulars, with Boudreau and Susce as alternates. The Indians will use six men against the five on the Linsz team. (This is once Lou won't object if the boys strike out.)

Jim Schlemmer, Akron Beacon-Journal: It isn't hard to see that hysteria is sweeping the baseball owners' fraternity house. They're scheduling starting times for any hour they figure a street car will dump a full load in front of their turnstiles. (They're planning one here in the wee hours, Jim, when only an owl car is running.)

Nixson Denton, Cincinnati Times-Star: If the big boys keep on changing the starting times for baseball games, fans will have to hire secretaries to see that they get to the ball parks when they should. (Confusing, isn't it, with 'em playing daytime, night time, ewt and ewt?)

Paul Hornung, Columbus Dispatch: An (AP) wirephoto from North Africa recently pictured an Arab wearing a Northwestern university sweat shirt. He was Ali Ben Bey, who graduated in 1940 and had a couple of major league bids after being a brilliant shortstop for the Cats. He chose to return to Casablanca, however, to help his father in the rug business. It would have been a heck of a lot cheaper for the old man to have kept Ali Ben at home and imported a bunch of Benny Goodman records, if Ben was going to wind up as a 'rug-cutter' anyway. (Well Paul, Ben is a sweat shirt ahead, isn't he?)

Ken Wurtsbacher, Springfield Sun: Frankie Frisch had three rookies in his Pittsburgh lineup on opening day, and promises to use more as the season progresses. At that rate it won't be long before the Pirates have an all-Frischman team. (Uncle Sam has a lot of rookies on his club, Ken, and he's doing all right.)

John R. Hanlon, Alliance Review: Existing maps of Stark and Portage counties are all wrong. One need venture only a short distance north of Alliance to prove this. The maps do not show the water, forming the reservoir being created by the Berlin dam project, that is rapidly assuming the proportions of a lake, engulfing farmlands, covering roads and bridges. (That's the only Berlin-created project that will ever change our map, isn't it, John?)

SCHOOL TRACK MEET IS TWILIGHT AFFAIR

Finals To Start at 5:30 at Miami Saturday.

By The Associated Press

OXFORD, O., May 7—A new stunt in Ohio high school track and field competition will be tried at the ninth annual Miami university meeting here Saturday.

For the first time, finals in the track events will be staged in the twilight. Actually, they will get under way at 5:30 p. m. (CWT), but officials hope to have the winners crowned by sundown.

Finals in the field events will start at 12:30 p. m. and preliminaries and semi-finals in the running events start at 1 p. m.

Also for the first time this year's carnival has been held to one day. Previously prelims were run-off one day, the finals the next.

Springfield will defend its class A championship with a squad of 16 boys, one of the biggest entered. Rome-Stewart, class B titlist, will be represented by only four boys. More than 300 youths, representing 13 class A and 16 class B schools are entered.

Cubs' .300 Hitter Now on Ineligible List

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 7—Lou Novikoff, the Chicago Cubs .300 hitter last year, moved farther back into the doghouse today after Ford Frick, president of the National league, placed him on baseball's ineligible list.

Novikoff was automatically suspended under the code which calls for a player to report within 10 days after the start of the championship season or face ineligibility.

Twenty-two piano pupils of Miss Estella Schuler were presented in a public recital, Thursday evening, at Senior High school auditorum. The program consisted of organ and piano duo numbers, piano duets, piano trios, piano quartets and songs.

Candlelighting toasts at the banquet table by each member, a tradition of the club, was a feature for the closing social function of the year by the Progress club. The meeting was held at the Bemiller home, dinner being served at 6:45 o'clock. The gavel was presented to the in-coming president, Mrs. W. C. Deaton, by the out-going president, Mrs. Earl Horn. The program was planned by Mrs. R. C. Arter.

A contribution of $20 was voted by the Frauenverein of Peace Lutheran church at its May meeting Thursday for Lutheran world action work. The meeting was held at the parish house with Mrs. Augusta Rehl as hostess. Both business and devotions were in charge of Mrs. Ida Linsenmann.

The meeting of Section S of the W. S. C. S. of First Methodist church was held at the home of Mrs. Cora Ferrall, South Boston street.

GALION—Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ness, 731 Harding Way West, are the parents of a son, born Thursday morning at City hospital.

"CORRECTED" BALLS — National league president Ford Frick holds two "corrected" 1943 baseballs in his left hand and an earlier "dead" model in his right hand as he displayed the new models in New York City. Covers of the balls have been cut to show the difference in the effect of the cement used on the yarn. (Associated Press Photo)

King's Daughters Elect Officers in Union County

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, May 7—Mrs. John H. DeVoss of Milford Center was elected county president of the King's Daughters during a county meeting which followed an all-day session of Group 4 comprised of four counties in this district at the Marysville Congregational church Tuesday.

Miss Mary Lake of Richwood was elected vice president; Mrs. H. H. Kettler, Milford Center, secretary and Mrs. Effie Tossey, Marysville, treasurer. Officers were installed by Mrs. Fred Spieker of Toledo, state president, who gave an address at the district meeting.

The 1944 session of the group will be held in Columbus next May. Delegates attended the meeting from Marion, Franklin, Delaware and Union counties.

BUCYRUS, May 7—Rites will be held Monday at 9 a. m. at Holy Trinity Catholic church for George L. Stahl, 71, who died in City hospital Thursday of cerebral hemorrhage. Burial will be made in the Catholic cemetery. Born in Germany, Mr. Stahl came to this country at the age of 20 and has made his home here since. He was a retired machinist.

Street Improvement Studied at Bucyrus

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, May 5—Bucyrus city council referred to its planning committee and the service director estimates presented by the state highway department for the proposed improvement of Mansfield street and North Sandusky avenue which pass through the city on main state highways. Estimates for North Sandusky were in the neighborhood of $19,000 and the Mansfield street improvement was estimated at approximately $15,000, the city to assume one third of the cost as its share. Whether the city will accept the estimates and ask the state to proceed with the improvement will depend upon the action of the committee which was asked to report back to council in two weeks.

The question of parallel parking versus diagonal parking, which brought considerable opposition from proponents of both plans last summer again was brought up when Councilman Ed Carter asked that council adopt legislation reverting to diagonal parking around the outside of Washington square. A motion to proceed toward that end was passed with one opposing vote expressed by Councilman James Kehrer. Parallel parking adopted in the entire downtown area last summer will be retained elsewhere.

STOCK PICTURE IS UNCERTAIN

Buyers Nibble Cautiously But Profit Taking Discourages Rally.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 7 — Buyers continued to nibble at selected stocks in today's market but further profit taking in others blurred the trend picture to some extent.

Individual spots of strength appeared after a fairly lively and indefinite opening and, while losers were plentiful near the fourth hour, most setbacks were small. Rails were among the few soft groups.

Optimistic war news remained as a buying argument. Commitments were trimmed in certain cases on thoughts of a possible technical correction following the string of three-year highs.

Stocks at peak levels for 1943 or longer included Budd Mfg., preferred and common, Pepsi-Cola, Standard Oil (N.J.), Du Pont, Montgomery Ward and J. I. Case. Resistant were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Consolidated Edison, Kennecott and Philip Morris. Among intermittent casualties were American Telephone, Chrysler, General Motors, Westinghouse, Anaconda, Douglas Aircraft and Radio Corp.

WHEAT PRICES DROP ABOUT ONE CENT

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 7 — Wheat prices dropped about a cent today in a persistent downturn as selling from houses with southwestern connections met little buying power. Liquidation apparently was based upon more favorable growing weather for crops in some sections of the hard wheat belt.

Oats were steady at the start, but slumped later along with the bread cereal. Rye exhibited a weak undertone throughout the session, although trading was relatively light. Corn remained at ceilings, with only a few small lots of the September contract changing hands.

Columbus Boy Spends Night Locked in Cooler

7-Year-Old Lad Forgotten In "Nazi Jail."

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 7—Seven-year-old Richard Peters was back home today, after spending a long, wet night in the "cooler."

The youngster, playing "commando" with neighbor boys last evening, was captured and placed in a "Nazi jail"—a large ice box. The game broke up, the other boys went home, Richard failed to appear, and police made an all-night search for him.

Early this morning a boy rapped at the Peters' door.

"Did Dick come home last night?" he asked.

Reading the answer on the faces of the anxious parents, the neighbor lad continued:

"I didn't think he did. I left him locked in the ice box, and didn't remember him until this morning."

Unable to open the box, the parents called the fire department, and the front was chopped from the "jail."

Dick's first remark, as he stepped out, was:

"I'm hungry."

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

INTO Katharine's eyes came a feral look, and she shouldered perceptibly.

"Do you mean," she asked, "that I will have to endure that beast?"

"Not if I can help it," I said hurriedly, "and I think I can. But you must be prepared for any emergency."

"Yes, I know that!" she said, "but if I have to see that woman, I shan't be seeing Jack. I'll be occupying a cell in Bellevue or under the eyes of the homicide squad."

I laughed at her extravagance, although I felt anything but mirthful.

Wants Full Story

"I don't think you'll have to see her," I said calmly, "but if you do, you'll carry on with your calm up, as you always do. And now is there anything else on your mind? I must go back to Father soon. In fact, I am surprised that he has not called me before this."

"You must know what's on my mind," she said reproachfully. "Please tell me every word Jack said, how he looked, and everything. Remember how long it's been since I had any authentic news of him."

"I'm afraid you won't like some of it," I told her dubiously, "but you'll laugh at other parts. After all, it's your right to know everything that was said and done, so pay strict attention."

"I'm all ears," she said eagerly. Then I repeated every word of my conversation with Jack, from his first wild demand as to how I had discovered his presence in the hideaway, to his final rapturous consent to her coming down to see him.

She did not interrupt; only a light-hearted laugh when I described Jack's terror at having her see him unshaven and unshorn, and the comment "Poor darling. There speaks the vanity he doesn't know he possesses."

Grateful to Madge

But when I had finished her eyes were misty and, flinging her arms around me, she kissed me with loving gratitude.

"Well, old dear, you turned the trick," she said. "And did your to an inability to sleep on the right side of anything.

The question goes up again and again and lately in an effort to find the cause of arthritis in Birmingham (Eng.) it was found that for many years—late years of the patient's life—the pulse rate of the patients took during sleep and not made to quiver from every available side began to incline "to most beat on the left" or vice versa. Then this was definitely characteristic for each individual. This individual would have the pulse and veins he did he was "fairly recumbent that he had made a change."

Sleeping habits change with age changes. Children like to sleep on their abdomen, face down, and many people retain this infantile habit until quite late in life. Most adults, if they take a nap in the day, do not sleep on the back. Most adults at night sleep on one side or the other, moving from side to side.

Disease sometimes makes some difference in sleeping habits. The Birmingham physician found that people with angina pectoris avoided sleeping on the left side. This is partially understandable because angina pectoris means pain in the heart, the heart is on the left side and that side would naturally be avoided.

Do sleeping habits induce any diseases? The gentleman from Birmingham thinks that they do. He believes that sleeping on the abdomen for any long period in life is inclined to induce liver and gallbladder disease. He says: "I asked patients specifically if there was any period in their lives when they slept on their abdomen. Many people who did so for long periods were found to have some part in present time of gallbladder disease."

While these observations are interesting for investigation, I would be very skeptical as to their real value.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. B.—What would cause a spot to form on the nails and tips of the fingers each day? Does this have any effect on the heart? Would it hinder a person being an Army aviator?

Answer: A deformity of this kind is probably due to nicked nails that was acquired in childhood. It does not affect the heart. Whether or not he can pass an Army examination would depend on how extensive it is.

J. Z.—Is chronic mastitis dangerous, and in what way?

Answer: Chronic mastitis is a chronic inflammation of the female breast. It is sometimes mistaken for cancer. Sometimes it causes considerable discomfort but otherwise is not dangerous.

MITTEN STRATEGY

The best way to prevent baby from losing his mittens is the much-used, yet reliable idea of sewing tapes onto them, then either attaching the tape to his sleeves or tying the two mittens together to be put around the outer collar of baby's snowsuit.

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, May 8

A PARTICULARLY lively and exciting day is forecast from the predominant planetary vibrations, albeit much of this activity may demand regulation, vigilance and shrewdness. There may be encouragement for attacking new and possibly spectacular projects, inaugurating fresh programs for advancing old interests in which the public or community may be lucratively concerned. Adhering to sensible codes, in all contacts, may avert danger or regret.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year of much liveliness and all around activity, with new, fresh or novel interests under excellent impetus for success or probably unexpected achievement. There may be menaces of illicit doings, with intrigue, duplicity and subtle snares lying in wait, and the judgment may be too snappy or emotions erratic for dependability. Keep sane and sensible.

A child born on this day may possess much versatility and creative talent of originality and merit, but it is likely to be ensnared by intrigues or its own sensations and emotions, unless early warned.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Positions Assumed in Sleep

DURING his last illness the eminent English physician, Sir Astley Paston Cooper, expressed a wish that after his death his body would be examined at autopsy. He particularly alluded to four points for investigation: a cured oblique inguinal hernia, a cured umbilical hernia, some suspected indication of tuberculosis in his youth and his inability to sleep while lying on the left side.

Puzzling Points Settled

The great advances in the science of pathology since Sir Astley's day, with the accumulation of knowledge that has resulted from the enlightened attitude of the public about the desirability of autopsies, have settled all the points that may have puzzled Sir Astley about his hernias and his tuberculosis.

We know all about the pathology and nature of these diseases now, or at least we have a practically complete working knowledge. But the old controversy about sleeping on the side or the back or the abdomen still pops up. As a matter of fact, the autopsy was performed on Sir Astley's body after death and nothing was found which accounted for his inability to sleep on his left side; he had some adhesions around the gallbladder, but that should point
